A Full Enquiry, Now

THERE IS MUCH THAT IS still obscure about the charges of political interference in programs of the CBC, but the very suggestion such interference was a grave matter and must be cleared up.

As a national source of news opinion and comment, the CBC must remain free and independent in every way. Any attempt to impose governmental or parliamentary influence strikes at the root of the independent radio and television system which has been built up over the years. As a national system of communication, the CBC must be open to all shades and varieties of opinion. That is a cardinal principle in its operation.

More than thirty employees of the CBC, including top men in their profession, resigned their jobs in protest against what they alleged to be management's "unprecedented surrender to political pressure.

The fact that the CBC management has reversed its decision and restored the program in question does not alter the need for an en-The public must be satisfied that this institution has not been under the threat of interference nor will be in the future.

Mr. Bushnell, the acting president of the CBC, has been placed in an unhappy position. His employees rebelled against a management decision; now they are upheld by the Board of Governors. Can Mr. Bushnell carry on under such circumstances?

There have been-charges against the CBC in the past regarding pro-gram selection and handling of the news, but all have been successfully weathered. And where there have been efforts to influence CBC these have been resisted.

In the present case, however, C employees believe that what Opposition Leader Pearson called "clandestine political influence" was exerted to cause the removal of a political commentary program from the air. It is on this point, described as the culmination of mounting discontent, that the resignations were based.

Parliament must have a full enquiry into this matter as soon as livelihood, which should be given sproblem; they must know the whole the fullest investigation and the whether the charges are informed fullest publicity.

The CBC was inaugurated to sustain and develop Canadianism against the rising tide of outside influences. It has become a vital part of our nationhood and must remain above all interference if it is to continue to hold the respect of Canadians and do the job for which it

Stalemated But Optimistic

THERE WAS STRONG UNITY among the Western allies at the Geneva conference, U.S. Secretary of State Christian Herter said Tuesday night, but it appears that this unity was most in evidence on the policy of holding on to West Berlin. On other points at issue it has been less than perfect, with Britain taking a stand more open to negotiation than the United States. France, on the other hand, has been at odds with NATO's atomic policy threatening a split in the military front.

Against these facts Mr. Herter's assurances were comforting but rather optimistic. The salient point is, of course, that all the Western allies realize that their individual L'futures depend on the preservation of unity in the face of Russian pressures. Lesser considerations of policy will take a secondary place to this over-riding principle.

Mr. Herter had to report "no significant progress in solving the division of Germany and Berlin" He was optimistic that when the Geneva talks resume on July 13 some advance would be made, but he reasserted the principle that the West will not relinquish its position in West Berlin.

"If Russia persists in its deter-mination to add more than two million free West Berliners to the captive peoples of Eastern Europe,"

Mr. Herter said, "then no agreement is possible."

Without some sort of agreement at Geneva, even with "the Western allies willing to go the extra mile, he saw the prospects for a summit meeting as dim. President Eisenhower has taken this position in repeated statements. In this, however, the American stand differs from the British. Britain feels that if the foreign ministers' talks are a complete failure, then the need for a summit conference becomes even more urgent. Such a conference, it is felt, should be held before Russia provokes a crisis in Berlin, rather than afterwards.

Mr. Herter believes that the issue can only be fully resolved when Germany is reunified, but acceptance of the Soviet plan would ensure the permanent parti-tion of Germany. That is a broader issue which will take considerable time to settle-much more time than is available for the achivement of some form of settlement for

At the moment the whole matter is stalemated. It will take the introduction of some entirely new proposal to overcome this situation-a development which resumption of the Geneva talks may produce. But to the layman, at any rate, this at the moment can be no more than a hope.

Downtown Improvement

DURING RECENT DAYS VICtorians have been asked on two occasions by planning and architectural experts if they want their city to fall into the decay of untidy old age, or to be spruced up and at-

That, in general terms, is the issue posed by Mr. Brahm Weisman, planning director of the Capi-tal Planning Board, and by Mr. Rod Clack, architect and member of the city engineer's staff.

Mr. Weisman, in his announcement of a possible urban renewal survey, implies a first concern for housing. Mr. Clack deals more generally with the commercial and business district. The two approaches are compatible and should be co-ordinated.

It is a fact, of course, that urban renewal is proceeding in Victoria.
When a private owner gives his building a face-lifting or rearranges and redecorates its interior, he is engaged independently in that

The process, however, should be Intensified and, we believe, carried out on planned lines, rather than on a higgelty-piggelty basis which can lead to inappropriate use of sites.

And, without planning, independent renewal can leave areas, or spots, of decay which will ultimately depreciate districts where some owners fail to keep pace with their more progressive neighbors.

The move toward planned renewal seems, moreover, to have gained general public approval. Victoria, in spite of the delays thrust upon it, has made preparations for a major improvement in the View Street mall—and may be expected to proceed with that and later projects once obstructions have been cleared away. Mr. Clack, in his discussion of city improvement, admits that urban renewal will cost money. Of course it will. But without renewal, values will continue to fall. That is a matter of direct con-cern to all Victoria taxpayers, whether they own downtown prop-erty or not. If the business area runs down at the heel, then assessments there will automatically fall. The impressive share of the tax load carried by the downtown property will diminish and other taxpayers will have to make it up. That gives every city property owner a stake in urban renewal quite apart from the satisfaction of seeing the town grow in attractive-

Mr. Weisman's projected survey and Mr. Clack's advocacy of plan-ning in the business district dovetail nicely. They should enlist the support of citizens generally.

their undoubted affection for Queen Elizabeth in a curious fashion they fly into a fury against Miss Joyce Davidson, a television performer. As she had a perfect right to do, being the citizen of a Miss free country, Davidson said in New that she and most Canadians were indifferent to the Queen's present tour of Canada

Presumably she was right about her own feelings, as she was wro Hutchison feelings of most Canadians, but important point is not whether she was right or wrong. The important point is that she was entitled to say anything she pleased about the institution of the vn or, indeed, about anything else within the laws of libel, treason obscenity. And certainly it is not libel-ous, treasonable or obscene to express indifference to a royal four. Nevertheless, you might think from the anger of many Canadians that Miss Davidson had committed all those offences by a casual and perhaps foolish remark.

BRITAIN, I suppose, is more devoted to the Queen as a person and the Crown as an institution than any land Well it may be, considering its successful history under the mon-archial system. But in Britain few peo-ple are disturbed if somebdy stands up on a soap box in Hyde Park to demand the abolition of the monarchy. nation goes unperturbed about its business when some churlish scion of nobility undertakes to lecture the Queen on

This sort of irritation is taken by Britain in its stride like weather, war or other calamity. We sometimes forget in this country that only a hundred years ago the present Queen's ancestor, Victoria, was so bitterly criticized by the radical wing of politics and the respectable London press that she seriously threatened to abdicate.

IN those days there was a small but vocal and highly intellectual republi-can movement in Britain. It passed like many other alarming things but it was never illegal, nor is it illegal today. Any citizen of Britain or of Canada is within his rights if he forms a political party dedicated to the abolition of the monarchy and the establishment of a republic, even a communist republic, or a fascist dictatorship, provided he doesn't advocate violence to that end.

The fact that anyone can think or say what he likes on such subjects is

NO CAUSE FOR GLOOM We are assisting at the cruel and permanence. For if free citizens are told that they cannot oppose the institution of monarchy many of them start to do so immediately. The Crown is overwhelmingly popular in Canada mainly because it is a free Crown reigning over free subjects.

MISS DAVIDSON, however, did not advocate republicanism, she expressed no antagonism to the monarchy or to the Queen personally. She merely said that she was indifferent to the royal tour and thought (wrongly, I believe) that most Canadians felt the What is all the shooting about?

Why should the managers of the Cana dian Broadcasting Corporation be sol emnly asking themselves, with comical anxiety, whether Miss Davidson should be allowed to appear on the television screen again, as if her private views might poison the public mind and undermine the Crown?

To assume that a television actress thus endangers our system is to rate the strength of the Crown very low, almost to insult it. To say that Miss Davidson has no right to express her views in public is to misunderstand the nature of both the Crown and the

NEVERTHELESS, there is and always has been a small, nervous species of Canadians, more loyal than the archy itself, who rush around the country whispering that the Crown is in danger and the day of revolution at To most Canadians these people are only amusing but apparently they impress some ignorant observers in Recently the British people have been told by a few misinformed newspapers that criticism of the monarchy is rife in Canada when actually there has been no criticism at all in any public way, only some complaints about the arrar ments of the royal tour as made not by the Queen, of course, but by Canadian officials. This criticism is levelled solely against Canadians and reflects only con sideration for the Queen.

contains a good deal of all-Canadian nonsense and some hypocrisy. For example, in a western city which shall be nameless, for reasons of charity, the municipal authorities are outdoing themselves in loyalty to the Queen but, lest they deprive the merchants of some profits, have refused to allow a public holiday when she comes to town would make any sacrifice for the Crown except the loss of a few dollars. They worship the mystique of royalty so long as it comes cheap. But I have no doubt that these same ardent royalists will be outraged because Miss Davidson is merely indifferent to the royal visit.

Business must go on as usual and no one is to lose any money except an over-candid actress who seems likely to lose her job for expressing her opinion.
All of which is calculated, one would think, to puzzle an intelligent royal visitor from Britain.

Many people these days are knocking our schools. As a group of satisfied parents, we would like to express publicly our appreciation of the quality of teaching at the Royal Oak Elementary School.

While experts complain of the lack of stimulation for the gifted child in our school system, this problem is solved simply within the single class-room at Royal Oak by division isto work groups based on ability. This plan en-ables every child to work at his own speed, the more advanced students being able to complete three years' work in two vears.

The success of such a plan depends, of course, on the interest and efforts of the teaching staff. Our thanks are due to them for their contribution of time and energy above and beyond the call of duty, and to our principal for the imaginative and inspired leadership he has given Painful policy adjustments are now Painful policy adjustments are now necessary and even urgent, in order to remove the main obstacles to success at Geneva. Despite Herter's negotiating skill, the first phase at Geneva has ended in failure because Nikita S. Khrushchev plainly regards the Western allies in general, and Dwight D. Quiet obviously, Khrushchev does not think that Eisenhower means a word of what he says about "not giving an inch" at Berlin.

Next Please

Unless Khrushchev can soon be per-suaded to take an altogether different view, the next phase at Geneva will also end in failure, with potential conse-quences of the most dangerous charac-ter. Hence determined steps are needed to show that the president is in earnest.

At the outset in Geneva, only a small minority of the Western diplomats and experts feared that Khrushchev was not taking the President seriously. At the close, a substantial majority had been reluctantly convinced.

In the final Western offer for an accommodation at Berlin, Herter and his colleagues revealed their "fall-back" position. If they sweeten this offer much further, the Berlin position will cease to be tenable. Yet this final offer was scornfully, even arrogantly rejected by the Soviets.

One is forced to conclude that the Soviets expect to get a great deal more than the final Western offer. The opinion that the Soviets even hope to get Berlin itself, of course under the decent Pompton Lakes, N.J.: Joe Louis, who maintains veil of some sert of fraudulent "com-promise," is rather authoritatively credited to the able American Ambas-sador to Moscow, Lewellyn Thompson.

It will not be difficult to persuade the Soviets that these hopes are excessive, for the reason that the President actu-ally has been faking about Berlin. Even among our allies, and especially the British, there are grave doubts about the sincerity of the President's pro-

CHRISTIAN A. HERTER has come claimed determination not to surrender at whatever cost.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

But those who have been able to talk the matter over at length with Eisenhower are quite clear that he really has made his decision after peering into the abyss. They are sure he has decided that anything is better than surrender, even risking an H-bomb war.

This report of the President's state of mind is in turn confirmed by the close, day-to-day watch that he kept on the Geneva negotiations. Far urging Secretary Herter to go further the direction of compromise, the White House even balked at one or two minor concessions which Secretary Herter had been inclined to regard as harmless.

In short, the President seems to be every bit as firm as he keeps saying

Difficult Problem

Yet Secretary Herter's problem is very difficult indeed, because of the deep-rooted Eisenhower traits. Because of his own faith in human nature, the President finds it very hard to imagine that anyone else can suspect him of faking, even including Khrush-chev. When he declares he will "not give an inch," he expects to be taken a good idea, but you know how these young mothers are. You may have raised six babies of your own, but they think you don't know the first thing about babies. It's the first lesson a grandmother has to learn. But the babies don't change and I bet that in another 10 years or so, the baby doctors and the nurses will be using some of our old tricks and pretending that they're new.

"It was just like the old communal wash-house." Ellen said to Robert over lunch.

"Or women gathering by canal or river, or by some South Seas' pool. I've seen them in pictures, or read about them.

"Plus ca change, plus c'est la meme chose. It really was."

"Oh, do stop reading the paper for a mo-ment," said Ellen. "If you could have seen the people there. All ages and stages—the pregnant young wife with such a pretty smock, the mother with the little boys, the pedal pusher woman with the slightly veiny legs, the plump woman with the chenille spread, and the two-old ones at the back.

And men, dear. There were six old men in

Swimming Cramps

The Washerwomen

Ellen said to Robert, ing so she made it up for them: perfectly good washing ma "Well, I said to her I didn't think it was Robert.

A while ago I confessed to ignorance about cramps that swimmers are supposed to suffer, and asked readers if they could supply me with information. They did, and I received a number of very helpful letters. Most of writers agreed with me that ordinary swim-ming, right after a meal, is not dangerous.

Mrs. Stoneburner, a professional swimmer, tells of occasions when she has had cramps in her muscles and of occasions when she has had to assist swimmers who had a bad Alvarez cramp. She says the pain can be terrible She and several other writers think that great coldness of the water is a factor. Many spoke of the need for the person's not losing his head. Panic can lead to disaster, Mrs. S. tells how once a cramp came in her side, so terrible that she couldn't move. She rolled over on her back and managed, with only her arms, to swim 25 feet to the edge of the pool. There someone had to pull

Mr. Glenn T. Saxe said he knew one man who nearly drowned with leg cramps. After eating at a picnic, he dived into a river and didn't come up. His friends who went down after him found him "drawn up in knots." Mr. Harold H. Weeks also nearly died in a swimming hole. He got a cramp in the calf of one leg so awful that immediately he sank to the bottom. Friends pulled him out.

Mr. J. W. Sakner suspects he has been allergic to cold. On one occasion, sailboat capsized in a very cold lake, he could swim, but his vocal cords were temporarily paralyzed. Once when he fell through some ice, he immediately suffered terrible pain in the lower part of his abdomen-pain which took all the strength out of him. Fortunately, a friend managed to pull him

Miss Margaret Lenz also thought the coldness of the water a big factor in causing cramps. Once, on stepping into a cold shower, she got a cramp in her chest which for a while shut off her breath. If this had happened while she was swimming, she thinks she would have drowned.

* * * Mr. Feore says he never had cramps while swimming in warmish water. He thinks cold is a factor. Mr. Vernon Healy says that once while swimming in an icy surf, he got a cramp in his abdomen, so terrible that he was barely able to reach shore. Mr. John Baker, Jr., once had a cramp while swimming in a cold lake, and it was much like the cramps one gets in one's leg when in bed at night. He thinks the only reason he survived was that he did not get panicky.

Dr. M. G. Baggot said that the nervous impact of a little water entering the lungs can stop the heart. He tells of a man who, while swimming, inhaled some water which stopped his breathing for over 30 minutes. During this time he was conscious and could move his arms and legs but he had to have artificial respiration.

Mr. Hack N. Nathans, a former lifeguard said that in 28 years' experience he could not recall anyone who had blamed a cramp for his or her distress. He thought the common-est cause of near-drowning is exhaustion.

sum up: the impression I have now is that in rare instances, especially in very cold water, swimmers die from getting a terrible cramp in one of their muscles—a cramp so painful that they become demoralized or almost paralyzed. Some of these persons almost paralyzed. could not swim at all after the cramp struck them. They had to be pulled out.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Supreme Court of Canada today upheld unanimously a Londo Ont., hospital's bylaw against

The Victoria Hospitals By. June Mary Blandy, 2621 law was attacked by three London doctors - Harold Hender-son, J. H. Spence and Donald B. Ferguson—who previously Hamley, lost their bid in the lower mont, 30 courts in Ontario to have the fee-splitting prohibition de-clared invalid.

Their argument, while it possed the "vicious" practice Burnside, $10 for failing to opposed the "vicious" practice of fee-splitting, was based on the view that the hospital board of trustees has no authority to regulate the morals of the medical profession.

They argued that any ban on fee-splitting - the practice whereby two doctors share a patient's fee, without the patient's knowledge — should be imposed by the profession itself, perhaps by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Their case was argued before the Supreme Court last May 11 by W. B. Williston, Toronto lawyer.

SAY LAW VALID

In reply, George L. Mitchell and J. J. Robinette, Toronto lawyers representing the hos-pital board of trustees, argued that the bylaw was valid and within the board's authority.

Mr. Mitchell argued the trus tees were obliged to ban feesplitting to maintain their top ranking elass "A" standing under the Ontario Public Hos

The fee-splitting bylaw also provides that doctors must open their books to the trustees' auditors once a year

This was simply a condition of staff membership in the hospital, Mr. Mitchell argued.

Armstrong survived the crisis, and doctors said he fin-ally drifted off to sleep at dawn. But the sleep was rest-less and feverish. His temperature was up to 102 degrees. A doctor remained with him constantly

NEW YORK (AP)-A television documentary on James R. Hoffa, leader of the Teamsters' Union, drew plaudits today from newsplaudits paper reviewers here.

The hour long program was presented Wednesday night by the Columbia Broadcasting System's news department.

The cameras showed Hoffa conducting a union meeting, talking with reporters at a press conference and testifying before a congressional committee. Included were interviews with rebel teamsters opposed to his leadership.

"The idea is to provide bet-ter scouting," said Brig, Wil-liam Roaf of Vancouver, pro-vincial commissioner of the Boy Scout Association. He was one of 15 executives at the day-long session. Administration of the activities of B.C.'s 32,000 scouts is now concentrated in Vancouver, explained M. J. Foley, president of the provincial council for B.C. and the Yukon.

"Both headquarters and the outlying areas think it best to decentralize," said Mr. Foley, who is also board chairman of

The meeting worked toward setting up of the first of seven to 10 self-administering areas in B.C. The Kootenays would the first of these if plans worked out.

* , * * . MONTY'S HOUR—As a military strategist and leader of men Field Marshal Viscount Bernard Law Montgomery can stand on his illustrious record, a $1.92 veritable superman-at-arms.

However, his BBC recorded show, as unveiled Tues-BETTER LUMBER BUYS day night by the CBC, was something else again, being strangely disappointing.

First of all, unlike his fellow countryman Lt.-Gen. Sir Brian Horrocks, who entertained us to accounts of some of the great Second World War battles last summer, Field Marshal Montgomery talked down to his audience, or at least he imparted that feeling to me. But worse still, his narration was jumpy, skipping from love story against the background of New York's this point to that so that in the end his "Prolog and social life. Battle of Alamein" seemed somehow unfinished, disjointed and without body.

This, of course, may have stemmed partly from the fact that as originally recorded by the BBC the shows were of half-hour duration but the CBC lumped two of them together to make up the 60 minutes.

However, on the good side, he projects well. That is, he is cheerfully content with himself and his works without being obnoxious. What's more he even appeared to relish his role before the cameras to such an extent that he hammed it up at the end with his watch pre tending that he didn't know that time had run out.

He is scheduled to be seen in six more such hourlong programs.

Navy to Show Off a Sailor's Life on Land and Sea

Ships of the Royal Canadian Navy will be on display for "just plain people" as well as royalty in July.

In addition to a major role during the Royal Visit, June 16 and 17, the Pacific Command will stage its annual Navy Day and open house July 25.

Because of the extensive activities while Queen Elizaand Prince Philip are here, Navy Day will be opbasis this year.

But the public will have plenty of opportunity to examine ship and shore installations at first hand.

Visitors will be welcomed at HMCS Naden and HMC Dockyard, where static displays will be prepared to show the navy's daily routine. Destroyers and minesweepers. moored at Dockyard and Naden will offer guided tours through the ships

The Mechanical Training Establishment and B.C. Mari-time museum, on the road ap-proaching Dockyard, will also be open on Navy Day.

Right now, however, the navy is setting its sights on turning in a 100 per cent perfect operation during the. Royal Visit.

Title Fight Delayed -Now Set for Friday

NEW YORK (AP) — The heavyweight title fight be-tween champion Pluyd Patterson and Sweden's Ingemar Johansson at Yankee Stadium today was postponed until 10.30 p.m. EDT (7.30 p.m. PDT) Friday night because of bad weather.

Earlier the fighters had weighed in, with Patterson scaling 182 pounds and the Swedish challenger 196.

The postponement is expected to raise some complications, chiefly because of the closed-circuit telecast to theatre and arenas in the United States and Canada. Some of these may not be available Friday night.
